My dear Mr Lowman

I saw a telegram I saw yesterday in the "Impartial" it seems that Sir Charles Dilke is in Canada and is not likely to return to England for two years. Will this be an inconvenience to you respecting his signature for the receipt of my pension.

I am very, very sorry for him. It seems incomprehensible that the evidence of such a woman as Mrs C, whose word cannot be depended upon, should crush such a man as Dicke. I think there must be envy and malice in all this.

With love to you dear wife, and sincere wishes for your health and happiness I remain

Ever yours sincerely

J Keats de Lamas
